darkness .- [Chicago Tribune.

A bridal night experience almost surpassing in tragic horror that of the bride of Lammermoor, which Scott said was "an ower true tale," is reported from Rio Grande del Sur, near the Uruguay frontier. A young farmer's marriage was postponed on account of his being bitten by a dog. The wound was cauterized and all went well. Three months later doctors declared all danger over. The marriage took place. A supper followed, and at supper the bridegroom was noticed to fall into gloomy abstraction. After supper came dancing, and when the ball was at its height the brideand bridebroom withdrew. About an hour later piercing screams came from the bridal chamthe floor lay the bride still alive, but torn as though by a wild beast. The bridegroom, covered with blood, and foaming at the mouth, cowered in a corner, but in a moment sprang upon one of the men, when a brother of the bride sent a bullet through his heart.

SYMPTOMS OF A DISEASED LIVER.

Bad Breath; Pain in the Side, sometimes the pain is felt under the Shoulder-blade, mistaken for Rheumatism; general loss of appetite; Bowels generally costive, sometimes alternating with lax; the head is troubled with pain, is dull and heavy, with considerable loss of memory, accompanied with a painful sensation of leaving undone something which ought to have been done; a slight, dry cough and flushed face is sometimes an attendant, often mistaken for consumption; the patient complains of weariness and debility; nervous, easily startled; feet cold or burning, sometimes a prickly sensation of the skin exists; spirits are low and despondent, and, although satisfied that exercise would be beneficial, yet one can hardly summon up fortifude to try it—in fact, distrusts every remedy. Several of the above symptoms attend the disease, but cases have occurred when but few of them existed, yet examination after death has shown the Liver to have been extensively deranged.

It should be used by all persons, old and young, whenever any of the above symptoms appear.

Persons Traveling or Living in Un-healthy Localities, by taking a dose occasion-ally to keep the Liver in healthy action, will avoid all Malaria, Bilious attacks, Diznices, Nau-sea, Drowsiness, Depression of Spirits, etc. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no in-toxicating beverage.

If You have eaten anything hard of digestion, or feel heavy after meals, or sleep-less at night, take a dose and you will be relieved. Time and Doctors' Bills will be saved

RAVING MOTHER.

The farmer sat in his easy chair Between the fire and the implight's glare His face was ruddy and full and fair; His three small boys in the chimney nook Conned the lines of a picture book; Baked the biscuit and made the tart, Laid the table and steeped the tea, Deftly, swiftly, silently; Tired and weary, weak and faint, She bore ker trials without complaint, Lake many another household saint— Content all selfish bliss above In the patient ministry of love.

At last, between the clouds of smoke That wreathed his lips, the husband spoke.

"There's taxes to raise and int'rest to pay—
And of there should come a rainy day
"Twould be mighty handy, I'm bound to say, T' bave sumthin' put by. For folks must die, An' there's funeral bills, and gravestones to buy Enough to swamp a man purty nigh; Besides, there's Edward and Dick and Joe To be provided for when we go, 80, 'f I was you, I'll tell ye what I'd du: I'd be savin' of wood as ever I could— Extra fires don't do any good; I'd be savin' of soap, and savin' of ile, And run up some candles once in a while; I'd rather be sparin' of coffee and tea,

For sugar is high,
And all to buy,
And cider is good enough drink for me;
I'd been kind o' careful about my clo'es And look out sharp how the money goes-Gewgaws is useless, nater knows; Extra trimmin' 'S the bane of women

" I'd sell off the best of my cheese and honey, And eggs is as good, nigh about, as the money; And as to the carpet you wanted new-I guess we can make the old one du; And as for the washer an' sewin' machine, Them smooth-tongued agents, so pesky mean, You'd better get rid of 'em, slick and clean. What do they know about women's work?
Do they calkilate women was made to shirk?" Dick and Edward and little Jos Sat in the corner in a row. They saw the patient mother go On ceaseless errands to and fro; They saw that her form was bent and thin, Her temples gray, her cheeks sunk in ;

They saw the quiver of lip and chin—
And then with a wrath he could not smother,
Outspoke the youngest, frailest brother:
"You talk of savin' wood and ile An' tea. 'nd sugar all the while, But you's ever talk of savin' mother!"

THE KEY OF THE IRON SAFE

To be precise, it was on the night of Tuesday, the 14th of March, that Mr. Milbourne disappeared. It was on the morning of the 15th that Mr. Callow called in Clarges street; on the 16th he was sent down to Mr. Netherston at Torquay, who forthwith telegraphed that he would himself arrive in London on the 17th, bringing with him his duplicate key of the iron safe.

Inspector Ferraby confessed to himself that he was puzzled. He was careful not to confess as much to anybody elre, however. Indeed, he did not hesitate to maintain that he possessed a clew to the mystery, the while he assumed an aspect of shrewd reserve and live down the misgivings on his account, calm vigilance. He had fairly taken up his abode in Great Grasshopper House.

With the presence of Mr. Netherston upon the scene, and the production of his duplicate key, the mystery of the thin figure of Inspector Ferraby fol- done it anywhere else. It's so unsettling two frames of wood, shaped something solved, but in the most painful and appalling marner. The strong room having been opened, the body of the missing solicitor was discovered in a huddled attitude upon the iron floor. Apparently the poor man had been thrust into the room with some violence. There was a wound upon his scalp where his head had struck against one of the iron shelves of the safe. He had, perhaps, already taken up his hat and umbrella when the murderous assault was made upon him; at any rate, these rested beside his body. It was possible, of course, that they had been flung into the safe

A stranger's gloves found in the murdered man's room! The inspector tied the gloves up in paper and deposited them in his pocket. He made an entry of some length in his note-book, and family, I'd have you know. My father then took to brooding a good deal over the matter of the murder, as though discovery could be arrived at by a sort man, though I do attend races; and of incubative process.

The murder made a great stir. The newspapers found it an exciting theme. There was, of course, an inquest. There had been a post-mortem examination of the body. Inspector Ferraby was called. In the course of his testimony he produced the gloves found in Mr. Milbourne's room. He was obliged to confess, however, that he had not succeeded in tracing the gloves to their owner. The case was enveloped in mystery. It was proposed that there should be an open verdict: Willful murder against some person or persons Inspector Ferraby was still active, though he looked blue and pinched enough, for all the close buttoning-up of it was open, and the key stood in the lock, he thought, but was not sure. He his heavy overcoat and the thick muffling had not observed any one lurking about of his neck and chin.

But he had in a lodging house, and so hard upon a like the skeleton of an old-fashioned landlady-at Christmas time, too, of all others. But what's Christmas time to him now, poor gentleman? For the matter o' that, what's Christmas time to a good many others that's almost as of this. When are you going to let me poor and pale and cold and dead as he is, poor dear?"

And she burst into tears.

The inspector was eying the floor inquisitively. Presently he stooped, and with the help of a large clasp-knife succeeded in raising a portion of one of the boards. He found beneath it a rusty ring. He examined it carefully, and observed as he thrust it into his pocket: "Beyond a doubt, the key of that iron

ROGERS' REGRETS.

Samuel Rogers was not only a wealthy banker and rural poet; he had also a keen sense of humor, and there was something in the deadness of his countenance and the dryness of his manner which seemed to give additional point to his sareasms. His dwelling was a "cabinet of art," and he kept a model bachelor's household, his servants consisting of three men and one woman, When one died who had been a long time in his service a kind-hearted friend called to condole with him on the loss he had sustained, "Well!" exclaimed Rogers, after listening for some time to his expressions of sympathy, "I selves, don't know that I feel his loss so very much after all. For the first seven years he was an obliging servant; for the second seven years an agreeable companion; but for the last seven he was a tyrannical master."

"By George!" exclaimed a Frenchman, "I've slept sixteen hours, I went to bed at 8 and got up at 8." rator. See advertisement. For sale by Democratic and for a Tariff for Revenue only. to bed at 8 and got np at 8."

TWO DITTO GLANTS.

Capt. Martin Van Buren Bates, whe lives on a farm near Seville, Ohio, is seven feet eleven and one-half inches high, and weighs 478 pounds. Mrs. Bates is seven feet and eleven inches high and weighs 413 pounds. It is a difficult matter to convey an adequate idea of the proportions of such a dwelling as the one occupied by the Ohio giants. A door that is six feet six inches high is a large-sized opening in the side of a house—that is a dwelling house, not a cathedral. But the doors in the domicile of the Bates giants are ten feet high, and the knobs are nearly as high as the average man's

The house was built by Capt, Bates owing round the street corners with in 1876, and is elegantly furnished. In the main building on the ground floor are, besides the spacious hall, the bedchamber of the giants, a sitting-room and a parlor. The couch upon which the big couple sleep was made expressly for them, and it is a curiosity to look at, It is extensive enough to give the great people room to stretch in, and it looks as big as an ordinary-sized floor. It is really ten feet long, wide in proportion, and about twice as high as a common bed. The magnificent dressing-case is also a huge affair, with a glass upon it nearly as big as the side of a house. In the sitting-room is a piano of ordinary size itself, but it is mounted on blocks two feet high, so that the instrument is away up in the air, out of the reach of common folks. There are two rockingchairs in this room that are so big that the reporter had to climb up into one of them the same as an infant would clamber up into a "high chair." It is very expensive for the giants to live, as they have to pay such an exorbitant price for everything they wear. For instance, it costs the Captain $30 a pair for boots. It is a most astonishing sight to come across the two giants out for a drive City folks who have seen the ponderous wagons with wheels reaching to the second story of a house, used to haul stones weighing tons and tons, can form an idea of the vehicle used. It is pulled by six stout Norman horses, and it is enough to make a man think he has got 'em, sura, to suddenly meet such a spectacle on the road out in the country. Passing wagons have to let the rails down and drive into the adjoining fields until the giants

CHINESE REDS.

There are two kinds of Chinese beds, and both arranged for a complete shut ting in by means of hanging curtains and tapestry. The expensive kind is like a sort of cage, having a flat wooden the eye of a policeman fixed upon him deep lines about his white lips, but he roof, just the size of the bed proper, supported at a height of about eight feet from the floor on four corner posts and two intermediate ones. Then there is a sort of frieze or entablature work running around horizontally, above and you are safely penned in a sort of cage, and cannot possibly tumble out. The carving on these beds is sometimes very rich, and they cost much; but the "settle," which are stood up on the floor, facing each other. A mattress is placed on the prejecting parts of these frames, and a couple of slight sticks across the top; then curtains and hangings shut all in, and make it look as pretty as the taste and money of the owner are able. Inside there is a cotton quilt laid on the mattress frame. The occupant of the best lies on this, having a little roll of stuff for the head, and for a covering a very thick cotton quilt.

A NEW AND USEFUL INVENTION. Prof. Taylor, the microscopist of the Agricultural Department, has perfected an invention which will be of great assistance in microscópical work. THE process of subdividing the large plantations into smaller farms is going on steadily in the South. In Mississip pi, for instance, there were 42,840 plantations in 1860, and the average number of acres in each was 370. Ten years lat er there were 68,023 farms, the average area of each being 193 acres. In 1880 the number of farms was 76,205, average ing 185 acres each. While the area of cultivated land is less than it was in 1860. the production of cotton is nearly twice

No Whiskey!

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is one of the very few tonic medicines that are not composed mostly of alcohol or whiskey, thus becoming a fruitful source of intemperance by promoting a desire for rum.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is guaranteed to be a nonintoxicating stimulant, and it will, in nearly every case, take the place of all liquor, and at the same time absolutely kill the desire for whiskey and other intoxicating beverages.

Rev. G. W. RICE, editor of the American Christian Review, says of Brown's Iron
